

Early Journal Content on JSTOR, Free to Anyone in the World

This article is one of nearly 500,000 scholarly works digitized and made freely available to everyone in the world by JSTOR.

Known as the Early Journal Content, this set of works include research articles, news, letters, and other writings published in more than 200 of the oldest leading academic journals. The works date from the mid-seventeenth to the early twentieth centuries.

We encourage people to read and share the Early Journal Content openly and to tell others that this resource exists. People may post this content online or redistribute in any way for non-commercial purposes.

NOTES BY THE PUBLISHERS.

Numerous letters have been received commending in warm terms the typographical appearance of the May number of the REGISTER. We adopt this method of returning thanks to those who have thus extended encouragement to our end of the undertaking, and of adding the assurance that future numbers will equal, and, if possible, excel the first number in typographical beauty and accuracy.

As the REGISTER will doubtless be freely quoted by the courts, it is important that provision be made, in the beginning, for preservation in form for easy reference. We therefore offer the following suggestions:

1. That new subscribers begin their subscriptions with the first number, May, 1895, so as to have all the numbers complete.
2. That subscribers save each number, and, when volume is complete, have it preserved in neat, substantial binding.

We will, before the completion of the first volume, make a special rate for binding, low enough to serve as some inducement to those who would not otherwise have the REGISTER bound.

The rate for insertion of professional cards applies only to full subscribers—i. e. to those who have their names regularly entered on our subscription books.

For the sake of the appearance of this department of the REGISTER, we request those who send cards for insertion to limit the amount of matter to four lines. This practice will insure a much neater card. Those who now have more than that amount of matter in their cards, would improve the effect by authorizing us to take out the excess.

We would be glad to have lawyers and law firms who feel that they would be benefited by more space than is embraced in the regular professional-card department to take liberal space in the regular advertising pages of the REGISTER. Rates promptly furnished upon application.

We take pleasure in announcing that we shall print as a supplement to the July number of the VIRGINIA LAW REGISTER the valuable address of Hon. John Randolph Tucker before the Richmond Bar Association, entitled "Reminiscences of the Bench and Bar of Virginia." This address will be sent free to all subscribers to the REGISTER; and it will be mailed to other persons on the receipt of 50 cents.
